

Mr. Daniel Poh

Daniel is a partner at the Singapore office of Marks & Clerk, an international IP firm with 17 offices around the world. Daniel is a registered patent attorney in Singapore and the UK and has a degree in electronics and electrical engineering. He has been practicing in the IP field for over 18 years and specialises in the areas of ICT, software including AI and Fintech, computer engineering, electrical and electronics engineering. Daniel has extensive local and foreign patent prosecution experience and has been recognised by a number of leading IP publications. For example, the 2018 guide of IAM Patent 1000 says Daniel is ‘a favourite among domestic innovators’ and ‘a specialist in electrical engineering, software and information technology fields’.

Besides assisting clients to protect their IP, Daniel also actively contributes to the development of the IP ecosystem in Singapore. For example, he was a member of the Singapore Ministry of Law steering committee which developed the IP Hub 10-year Master Plan which was adopted by the Singapore government in 2013. Further, he contributed to the CII chapter and more recently to the AI chapter of the Guidelines for Patent Examination of the Singapore Patent Office.
